ENGAGEMENTS ANNOUNCED.

First War Call Is for "Females" to Take Up Work of Junior Draughtsmen.

The city of New York has just sent an '8 0 8" call for females-yes, that's the mid-Victorian way Commissioner William Williams of the Department of Water Supply, Gas and Electricity puts it-females to study for the positions of junior draughtsmen, as the young men now occupying these positions in the various city departments are liable to be called to war. Dr. Henry Moskowitz, head of the Municipal Civil Service Commission, said yesterday that the date for the examinations had not been set, as an opportunity must be given these women to train. The examinations will probably be in the early fall. The Columbia summer session affords chances for the study of line drawing and plane trigonometry needed for the job of junior draughtsmen. The New York University also gives the training.

Faminists might gibe at Commissioner Williams's statement that "the minimum salary is too low to induce competent men to accept appointment." It is $900 at the start, and if they reit is $300 at the start, and if they remain junior draughtamen the salary remains $300. But there is this promise held out to women who may be willing from patriotic or other motives to take jobs that competent men wouldn't take.
It is that if a woman chooses to bone in and parfect herself she can be advanced to the position of mechanical draughtaman, and later become an architectural draughtaman. For draughtsman, and later become an architectural draughtsman. "For women of ability and training," eays Father Knickerbocker, "the position of draughtsman offers an excellent chance of advancement to a salary of $2,400 or even more for those with engineering knowledge as well."

knowledge as well."

The list to be opened for examination is distinctly announced as a temporary one. The city intends to give the positions back to the man if they return from the war and want them again. But Dr. Moskowits, who is something of a feminist himself, said he considered this an entering wedge for women in a field they haven't been invited to before, and he thinks that once in they will star.
